"It appalls me that we can give answers from yesterday to the problems of tomorrow... We do not intend to defend our mistakes, but neither do we want to commit the greatest mistake of all: to wait with arms crossed."

- Fr. Pedro Arrupe, SJ.

FR. ARRUPE, SJ: 35 YEARS WITHOUT THE GENERAL WHO TAUGHT US NOT TO WAIT WITH ARMS CROSSED

Answers from yesterday cannot solve tomorrow's problems," Pedro Arrupe, SJ, warned. Thirty-five years after his death, the Hiroshima survivor and JRS founder challenges us still. As we head to Yogyakarta, his legacy demands we risk action over paralysis—and never wait with arms crossed.

WASHINGTON D.C.: THE WUJA COUNCIL THAT WENT BEYOND A MEETING

When the WUJA Council gathered in Washington D.C., it was more than governance—it was a strategic immersion. Meetings with Fr. Brian Paulson, SJ, and leaders of AJCU and the Jesuit Schools Network opened doors for deeper collaboration. Participation in the Ignatian Family Teach-In connected the council to grassroots energy. The result? A reaffirmation that WUJA is a vital partner in mission, and a model for how global leadership must stay grounded in local realities
